OPEN DIPLOMACY

Many important movements have sprung from the Y. M. C. A. To study them is to study national and international history, for they have come into being in response to great needs and great aspirations. They have grown into established places of usefulness and leadership in spiritual and economic fields. The Student Volunteer Movement, the World's Student Christian Federation, the Inter-Racial Commission, the Father and Son idea, the National thrift campaign are some of these movements.

Now another great idea, having its source and early nourishment in the Y. M. C. A., has taken definite form. The Institute of Pacific Relations, held in Honolulu in July, brought together men and women from the lands of the Pacific. They discussed social, industrial, political and religious issues affecting relationships among their countries. Those in attendance were not officials of governments, but persons whose experience and knowledge in important branches of life had proved their value as representatives.

SUNDAY MEETINGS BEGIN SUNDAY, OCTOBER 4TH

The Sunday afternoon services of the Pine Street Y. M. C. A. will begin Sunday, October 4th at 4 p. m.

HOW TO BECOME A MEMBER OF THE Y. M. C. A.

It is believed that there are hundreds of men and boys in St. Louis who would like to become members of the Y. M. C. A. There are but few Americans if any, to whom the four letters—Y. M. C. A. are not familiar.

The first step in securing a membership in the "Y"—to visit the building, meet every secretary, see all departments; ask for an explanation of each activity; secure an application blank and fill out and remit by cash, or check $10.00 for a full privilege membership and $3.00 for a social membership. You may join any day and any hour of the day. Application blanks can be gotten at the general desk or from the Membership Secretary. Join the "Y" today!

YOUNG MEN SEEK HIGHER EDUCATION

Within a few days the doors of institutions for higher education will open again to welcome the zealous boys and girls who are willing to make the necessary sacrifices that everyone must make if he or she is to kneel down and drink from the crystal fountain of knowledge. Among such seekers will be Messrs. Reginald Merritt, Charles Bouver and other Day of Pine Street Y. M. C. A., who have been employed in this association for several years, months and weeks respectively. Mr. Merritt, who is a product of the Lone Star State (Texas) where aggressive men are born and true character formed, came to St. Louis three years ago and was employed as Desk Clerk at the Pine Street "Y". Like Paul who sat at the feet of the learned Gamaliel and who was inspired to surmount the intellectual plains and delve into the hidden mysteries of life, Mr. Merritt was inspired by his Executive who is urging him to go forward.

Messrs. Bouver and Day who are products of Sumner High School are also recipients of such inspiration.

How rare it is to find young men of their age willing to betake themselves from the social hoy-poloy of such cities as St. Louis and join the band of Christian workers who are striving to mould the character of men and boys, implanting therein the principles of four fold life! As these young men cast their nets into the spiritual stream of the Chicago Y. M. C. A. College our prayers and hopes shall be with them, and as they look forward toward the goal of success may these words of the poet tune their souls:

It isn't the cut of the clothes that you wear

Nor the stuff out of which they are made; The chosen with taste and fastidious care.

It isn't the price that you paid, It isn't the size of your pile in the bank Nor the number of acres you own; It isn't a question of prestige or rank Nor of sinew and muscle and bone. It isn't the servants that come at your call.

It isn't the things you possess: Whether many or little or nothing at

OFF TO SCHOOL

The place and institution from which hundreds of youths sought to be relieved some three months ago now loom before them as just the place in which they find their greatest desire—schools and colleges.

The opportunities for securing an education are so numerous until no man nor woman need go uneducated. The Y. M. C. A. has greatly popularized the evening schools as a medium through which adults in particular may secure specialized education. So great and effective has been this avenue of helping men who for one reason or another have limited training on to places of usefulness until today most of our universities and colleges conduct evening classes in practically every department of their work.

During these days of registration in our day and evening schools the question is raised: "How many under the age of 45 shall register in some school for the improvement of their educational opportunities?" Let us launch a crusade for the purpose of enrolling thousands of girls and boys, women and men in some school.

Now that our boys and girls have entered school may we not encourage them, and so direct their tendencies that the enrollment in our schools will ever increase.

"The time is coming," says Robert E. Lewis, of Cleveland, "when the organization of religion will recognize the sagacity of Abraham Lincoln. He was not a church member. He was so profoundly Christian that he could not accept the divisions and limitations and partial truths of the creeds. About the creeds Lincoln said: 'When any church will inscribe over its altars as its sole qualification for membership, the Savior's condensed statement of the substance of both law and gospel: 'Thou shalt love the Lord Thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself,' that church will I join with all my heart and all my soul."

"The nation that is best educated in all respects will be the safest and happiest for residence, and it will succeed in all contests with others for supremacy."
—Judge Elbert H. Gary.

BILLIARD CAROMS

The mind plays the game of billiards and the mental attitude is necessarily concentration upon:

What you are able to do,
What you wish to accomplish
And the shot before you.

Your ability to do certain things will depend upon your KNOWING HOW to do them, so therein lies the very urgent need of practice.

The wish to accomplish what you have planned can only be attained by thorough knowledge of the effect certain strokes will produce upon the balls and just what position each ball will be in when the stroke is completed.

The shot before you is the one and only problem you have to solve, as each shot is different from any other that you must make and each shot offers a separate and distinct problem that will require an intense concentration of all of your mind, the active exertion of memory, the accurate computation of angles and the forecasting of the relative positions in which to leave the balls after the shot has been successfully made.

So much depends upon the mental attitude of the earnest billiardist, that in the daily activities of all of the dexterous arts and calling, we find that a change in the trend of thought is absolutely necessary and billiards offer just that change, coupled with such physical activity as to make it the ideal after-meal game for surgeons, dentists, lawyers, machinists and desk and bench workers, and in a large measure does billiards restore the loss of nervous control in all callings and vocations.

The secrets of success in billiards are application, concentration and determination.

The stance or balance of the body when shooting is of first importance and one cannot acquire accuracy without leaning the weight of the body on the firmly placed left foot with the right foot serving as a brace for the forward bend of the torso.

Remember that the muscles and nerves must be free from all strain since they must co-ordinate properly.

The first revelation that impresses one is that if the balls are struck with just the proper degree of force at the proper point, they will complete the carom and come to rest at the exact spots selected by one before the shot is made.

The ivory balls are wonderful mediums for transforming one's thoughts and desires into an every changing diagram of contacts, angles and relative positions and as one's skill increases, one's art is demonstrated in a thorough mastery of the three ivory spheres and with them one may weave a wonderful geometric design so complicated that to the unskilled person it seems that the balls are really and truly alive.

all—
It's service that measures success.

It isn't a question of name and length
Of ancestral pedigree.

It isn't a question of mental vigor and strength;

Nor a question of social degree.

It isn't a question of doctrine or creed;

It isn't a question of fame or renown

Nor a question of valorous deed.

But he who makes somebody happy each day,

And he who gives heed to distress
Will find satisfaction the richest of pay—
For it's service that measures success.

GYM OPENED TUESDAY SEPT. 8th

The Physical Department threw wide its doors last Tuesday after having been closed two weeks for renovation. A clean house and a newly marked floor greeted the noon class men and in spite of the extreme hot weather enjoyed their first work out.

Don't forget to look over the new hand ball court in the southwest corner. This game is popular all over the country and Pine St. athletes now will have a chance to try it out. It's mighty good for those fat stomachs and will put you on edge for most any of our other games.

The gym is open but the full fall program will not swing into action until October. Announcements of same with new features that everyone will enjoy will appear later. The noon classes and swimming classes started Tuesday.

"DOUG'S" PHYSICAL FITNESS

Douglass Fairbanker upon going home of evenings after hard days spent in dueling, rescuing and wooing bright damsels, and playing hob with the criminal classes, finds time to be a member of the Y. M. C. A. Having recently signed for a $40 business men's club membership in the Los Angeles Association, this tremendously idolized gentleman has given out to the Y. M. C. A. his ideas on physical fitness.

Says Zorro, off-stage: "Every man must have three qualities, enthusiasm, intelligence and courage, in addition to being physically, mentally, and spiritually active." His "spiritually" is interchangeable with "emotionally."

A new campaign for advertising the Y. M. C. A. was begun in cooperation with the motion picture exhibitors upon the opening of "Don Q. Son of Zorro," in New York. Pamphlets advertising the film production and applying the Fairbanks life policy to folks of the world, were supplied in large quantities by the Globe Theatre and distributed by the New York Association. This plan, once adapted to "The Thief of Bagdad," is now being widely used with "Don Q."

"Douglass Fairbanks," says the printed folder, "firmly believes that if the principle he employs in doing his so-called 'stunts' is applied to the everyday problems of life, the result will be unconditional victory."

"When about to perform an athletic feat, 'Doug' resorts to dynamics. First, he makes a mental picture of the hazard; then he arouses himself to an emotional and spiritual pitch that will stimulate the necessary physical strength and vitality to make victory his reward. 'But,' he cautions, 'a man's physical condition must be such that his muscles will have the strength to respond when called upon.'

Fairbanks has the reputation of never using intoxicants in any form.

COMMONWEALTH HAD GREAT DAY

Monday, Sept. 7th, the Commonwealth Fellowship Club with Club Room at Pine Street "Y" conducted a Field Day at the Plants, Granite City, Ill. It was largely attended by more than 500 women, men and children, white and colored.

Mr. B. C. Woolfolk, Welfare Director and Mr. Chiles of the Pine Street Staff supported by the Club officials, Messrs. Woodson, Craft and Procope from Pine Street were responsible for this big Holiday event.

The events consisted of relays, races and base ball. The "Y" boys won the exciting game by a score of 8 to 7. These youngsters made the old men bring muscle into play that had not been used since their youth.

Following the physical events a grand band concert by the Commonwealth Band Club officials served an abundance of refreshments. This last feature marked the closing scene of a great day at Commonwealth.

THE LAWN SENATE

Sits in a deliberate session at 3:30 a. m. and for one hour discusses current topics as they affect our groups.

On Labor Day the question was introduced by Mr. Hamilton of Louisiana: "What effect will the labor conference have upon the Garvey Movement?"

Thornton of Alabama lead off with an impassioned racial plea for Garvey, followed by Kage of Georgia and Willis of Mississippi in a plea for racial submission to the movement and then Scott of Illinois made a rapid attack upon Garvey's propaganda and showed clearly and logically why the American Negro should solve the problems of American life and remain in America.

The session closed with a unanimous vote sustaining Scott's plea.

On September 9th, Chairman Hamilton of Alabama introduced "The Racial Effects of the Wills-Dempsey fight."

Newell of Georgia made the point that the fight would awaken racial reprisals should Wills win. Miles of Kentucky violently opposed the speaker as did Taylor of Illinois, while Ford of Mississippi held that Wills would be afraid to beat a white champion. Wright of Illinois summed up the situation in "Win or lose the race backs Wills."
